

“CERA gives a solid grounding in the qualitative and quantitative areas of enterprise risk management.”

Brett Riley

Chief Actuary, Allianz Australia

A CERA tells us their story

I chose to study this qualification to:

- close some gaps in my knowledge and understanding of some areas of risk management
- gain a recognised qualification in an area in which I work
- better understand the subject for my Actuaries Institute work on risk management education.

CERA demonstrated my credentials in risk management when I was recently appointed CRO for an Australian general insurer. It has given me first-hand knowledge of the ERM subject taken by Australian actuarial students, which I support through the Institute’s Risk Management Practice Committee.

It has also allowed me to support my colleagues at Finity and their clients with a range of risk management requirements introduced in recent years by the Australian prudential regulator, APRA.

The course gives a solid grounding in the qualitative and quantitative areas of enterprise risk management. It has a strong practical flavour and should be considered by any actuary with an interest or role in risk management.
